How to watch debate between Newsom and DeSantis

BY LINDSEY HOLDEN
lholden@sacbee.com

California Gov. Gavin Newsom and Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis are preparing for, perhaps, the biggest political television event of the year.

The governors will face off at 6 p.m. Pacific time Thursday in a 90-minute “Red State vs. Blue State Debate” on the Fox News Channel, to be moderated by Sean Hannity. Newsom and DeSantis will meet in Alpharetta, Georgia, where they will spar in a studio without a live audience.

Democrat Newsom and Republican DeSantis have spent the past year trading barbs over their states’ policy differences. Newsom first challenged DeSantis to a debate in September 2022 on X, formerly known as Twitter.

“Hey @GovRonDeSantis, clearly you’re struggling, distracted, and busy playing politics with people’s lives,” Newsom posted at the time. “Since you have only one overriding need — attention — let’s take this up & debate. I’ll bring my hair gel. You bring your hairspray. Name the time before Election Day.”

This summer, the governors both confirmed their desire to square off in a debate during separate appearances on Hannity’s show. After some back-and-forth between their teams over location and debate logistics, Fox News announced the event in September.

Initially, DeSantis pushed for an audience and two-minute introductory videos in lieu of opening remarks. Newsom was opposed to having others present in the studio, and it appears he got his wish.

“I’m looking forward to providing viewers with an informative debate about the everyday issues and governing philosophies that impact the lives of every American,” Hannity said in the September announcement.

WHERE CAN I WATCH THE DEBATE?

The debate will air at 6 p.m. on Fox News, which is streamable on Foxnews.com with a login from a cable or satellite provider. Fox News Radio will also simulcast the event at radio.foxnews.com.

WHY ARE NEWSOM AND DESANTIS DEBATING?

Newsom and DeSantis are both hoping the debate will boost their political profiles in different ways.

DeSantis is actively running a losing campaign to become the Republican Party’s 2024 presidential nominee. He is trailing badly behind former President Donald Trump, making a nationally televised battle against a liberal governor an excellent chance to pique conservative voters’ interest.

Newsom has repeatedly said he is not running for president in 2024. Instead, he has been acting as a surrogate for President Joe Biden’s re-election and touting California values with billboards and newspaper and TV ads in conservative states, including Florida.

He recently launched one such ad slamming DeSantis for a law banning abortions at six weeks of pregnancy during Hannity’s show and during NFL Sunday Night Football.

The California governor this year also launched his Campaign for Democracy political action committee and took a tour of red states, including Florida.

Newsom relishes his role as a defender of Democrats, and the debate with DeSantis could introduce him to an audience that may prove helpful for a 2028 presidential run.

Officials who refused to canvass election results indicted

Associated Press

PHOENIX

Officials in a rural Arizona county who delayed canvassing the 2022 general election results have been criminally charged, the state’s top prosecutor said Wednesday.

A grand jury in Maricopa County Superior Court indicted Cochise County supervisors Peggy Judd and Tom Crosby on one count each of conspiracy and interference of an election officer.

“The repeated attempts to undermine our democracy are unacceptable,” Arizona Attorney General Kris Mayes said in a statement. “I took an oath to uphold the rule of law, and my office will continue to enforce Arizona’s elections laws and support our election officials as they carry out the duties and responsibilities of their offices.”

Judd and Crosby did not immediately respond to requests via text and email for comment.

Jane Montgomery, spokesperson for Cochise County, declined to comment. She confirmed both supervisors will be responsible for their own legal representation.

The indictment marks a rare instance of criminally prosecuting people connected to the vote canvassing being dragged out last year in six Arizona counties.

In December 2022, Cochise County certified election results only after a judge ruled Crosby and Judd, both Republicans, were breaking the law by refusing to sign off on the vote count by the deadline.

Crosby and Judd said they weren’t satisfied that the machines used to tabulate ballots were properly certified for use in elections. This prompted lawsuits including one from then-Secretary of State Katie Hobbs, a Democrat.

They both were subpoenaed to court earlier this month. Ann English, the lone Democrat on the three-member board and the only supervisor to vote for certification, was not subpoenaed or indicted.

At the time, Judd and Crosby told The Associated Press they had no idea why they were being subpoenaed. Crosby was shocked.

“I don’t feel like I broke a law. But, obviously the courts had different feelings,” Judd said.

Sean Hannity will moderate a debate between Florida Gov. and Republican presidential candidate Ron DeSantis and Democrat California Gov. Gavin Newsom on Thursday starting at 9 P.M. on FOX News Channel.

NEWSOM

But this debate showcases two big-state governors who are likely to be important players for years to come. Both have taken the steps that presidential candidates — both declared and wishful — historically take: Raise lots of money, win big in their big states and court national attention.

Here are some of the issues likely to come up Thursday:

● Crime. It’s hard to discern which state wins this argument.

California had nine firearm-related deaths per 100,000 people in 2021, among the lowest rates in the nation. Florida had 14.1 per 100,000, according to the National Center for Health Statistics.

WalletHub, a financial services firm, last month released a more comprehensive analysis of the safest states. It found both states ranked low. California was 36th and Florida was 46th.

However, California was 48th-lowest for personal and residential safety, while Florida was 35th. California ranked 47th in road safety; Florida was 46th.

● Immigration. Rep. Kevin Kiley, R-Rockford, offered on his blog this week a series of questions Newsom could be asked. One involved immigration, a topic where Republicans have been blasting Newsom for his outreach to undocumented immigrants.

Kiley said Newsom has “championed” California as a sanctuary state for undocumented immigrants and signed legislation providing them government health care coverage. Sanctuary jurisdictions tend to be those that don’t generally cooperate with federal immigration laws. Critics say they provide safe harbors, or sanctuaries, for undocumented immigrants.

It was actually Gov. Jerry Brown, Newsom’s predecessor, who signed into law legislation that created protection for undocumented immigrants living in the state. But federal immigration officials can still do their jobs, such as entering state and local prisons to check on someone’s status.

Newsom has taken steps to expand Medi-Cal, the state’s income-based health care program, to include many undocumented immigrants.

Medi-Cal has covered all eligible children regardless of immigration status since 2016. In 2019, after Newsom became governor, California became the first state to extend Medi-Cal coverage to all eligible young adults up to age 26.

Last year, the state became the nation’s first to expand extensive Medi-Cal eligibility to lower income people over 50, regardless of immigration status.

● Homelessness. It’s vexed Newsom since his days as mayor of San Francisco. Any way it’s measured, the homeless population has been growing.

About 30% of the nation’s homeless were in California, according to the 2022 report by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Between 2020 and 2022, the homeless population grew by 10,212, by far the most of any state.

The Newsom administration cites progress in dealing with the issue. Since July 1, 2021, it said

California has cleared 5,679 encampments from the state right-of-way. According to the governor’s office, the state has spent a total of $750 million so far to help an estimated 23,000 people to get off the streets.

● Freedom. DeSantis touts Florida as a place where the government imposes few restrictions on individual rights, and often cites COVID-19 policies.

“People are flooding into Florida because we’ve stood for freedom and prosperity,” he told Fox last week.

Newsom likes to bash Florida for being too lax in dealing with COVID-19. When he announced a year ago that he would end the state of emergency, he compared California to Florida. “‘Lockdown’ states like California did better economically than ‘looser’ states like Florida,” he said, and provided data.

During the COVID-19 emergency that began in 2020, Newsom ordered lockdowns and stay-at-home policies that remained in effect far longer than those in Florida. Initially, COVID cases were up in Florida when restrictions were off.

Newsom’s office cited a Los Angeles Times analysis of Johns Hopkins University data showing that far more Florida residents died on a per capita basis during the COVID-19 emergency than Californians. A different study, though, pointed out that Florida’s population is older and tends to be less healthy.

● Cost of living. The typical budget for a two-parent, two-child family in Sacramento County is $7,689 per month, according to 2020 data from the Economic Policy Institute in Washington. The calculation addresses what it calls a “modest yet adequate standard of living.”

It breaks down like this (all figures are monthly): Housing: $1,451, Food: $832, Child care, $1,169, Transportation: $1,223, Health care: $1,370, Other necessities: $827 and taxes, $817..

It costs roughly the same to live in Florida’s Miami-Dade County. EPI estimates a family of four would need about $7,549.

The breakdown: Housing: $1,551, Food: $902, Child care, $1,200, Transportation, $1,070, Health care: $1,240, Other necessities: $889, and taxes, $698.

Florida is less expensive in two big consumer areas. Gasoline costs less in Florida. So, generally, does housing.

The typical home price in California during June was $760,526, according to the Motley Fool, a financial and investment advice company. Florida’s average was $407,219.

A gallon of regular gasoline cost $3.16 in Florida Wednesday. The same gallon would cost $4.86 in California, according to AAA.

● Education. Newsom has repeatedly condemned Florida’s efforts to restrict what students can read in public schools, as well as its conservative social policies.

“That’s what stands today for education reform, at least that seems to be the debate,” he said at a July speech in Washington.

He sent a letter to textbook publishers in May demanding to know whether they are obeying Florida’s command to remove passages about culturally sensitive subjects from publications.

“California will not be complicit in Florida’s attempt to whitewash history through laws and backroom deals,” Newsom wrote.

“Parents have a right to know what’s happening in the dark to undermine our children’s education — and California deserves to know whether any of these companies designing textbooks for our state’s classrooms are the same ones kowtowing to Florida’s extremist agenda,”

Newsom critics cite data showing examples of Florida schools often outperforming California schools.

The U.S. Department of Education Nation’s Report Card, found that last year California public school 4th graders’ reading performance was roughly at the national average. Florida’s score was somewhat higher than average.

Math scores for public school fourth-graders were rated significantly higher for Florida students and significantly lower for California students.

Former firefighter pleads not guilty to planting explosives

BY MOLLY JARONE
mjarone@sacbee.com

A former firefighter pleaded not guilty Wednesday after he was arrested last week on suspicion of detonating an improvised explosive device and planting several others across El Dorado and Sacramento counties.

Benjamin Cunha, 41, was arrested last Friday after an investigation by the FBI, California Highway Patrol and El Dorado County Sheriff's Office, the CHP and Sheriff's Office said in statements.

Cunha, of Orangevale, was arraigned on several felony charges including possessing and exploding an explosive device with the "intent to injure, intimidate, and terrify a person, and to wrongfully injure and destroy property," according to the criminal complaint.

He faces 11 counts of allegedly possessing an explosive device "in, on, and near a public place ordinarily passed by human beings," court documents said. Cunha also faces a special allegation for having a previous felony conviction.

The Sheriff's Office in a social media post said Cunha was arrested following an investigation into a "series of improvised explosive devices that had been placed alongside roads and highways, in multiple locations in El Dorado County and Sacramento County." Sheriff's officials did not specify which roadways were involved.

In a separate social media post, the CHP said Cunha was apprehended after an "intense operation" in which an explosive ordinance disposal team carried out "critical search warrants."

Cunha was convicted of arson in 2016 after pleading guilty to setting at least 30 fires in rural areas east of Sacramento during 2006 and 2007, causing $7 million in damage, The Sacramento Bee reported at the time. He was sentenced in early 2017 to five years in prison and agreed to pay $246,862 in restitution to Cal Fire.

He set the fires after serving as a volunteer firefighter for the Diamond Springs Fire Protection District in El Dorado County. Cunha also worked from 2001 to 2003 as a seasonal firefighter for Cal Fire, The Bee reported.

Cunha "was motivated by boredom and the desire to be paid overtime when called out to fight fires," according to a written plea agreement filed in U.S. District Court in Sacramento in the arson case. Even though he was a volunteer, he could have been eligible for payment during busy periods, Robert Combs, chief of the Diamond Springs district, said at the time.

Cunha is being held in the El Dorado County Jail and is ineligible for bail, court records show. Sheriff's officials earlier said Cunha's bail was set at $2.1 million.

The El Dorado County Sheriff's Office did not immediately respond to a request for further information about Cunha's arrest.

Riverbank High student killed, district offers support

BY TREVOR MORGAN
tmorgan@modbee.com

Riverbank Unified School District expanded its support services for students of Riverbank High School after one of its students, 17-year-old Jacqueline Mendez, died Monday, according to a release from the district's superintendent, Constantino Aguilar.

On Monday, Mendez, a senior, was struck by a train near the Atchison Street bridge at about 10:50 a.m. Deputies with the Stanislaus County Sheriff's Office said, "There aren't any suspicious circumstances being investigated" in regards to the collision.

"I have personally met with the family to offer our full support during this difficult time," Aguilar wrote in a statement. "While there are no words that can ever adequately comfort those who face the loss of a child, I do believe that our small and tight knit community can offer them the love and compassion that they need by holding them in your hearts and well wishes."

Aguilar confirmed the district would increase support services at Riverbank High, and an administrator for the school stated that counselors would be available for students at its campus on Tuesday.

The district is asking families to inform students of the services available to them and for the community to respect the privacy of Mendez's family.

"A family in our community faces the unthinkable loss of their child. Together, let us hold them in our hearts, send them love and light and show them grace by respecting their privacy," wrote Aguilar.

The Sheriff's Office is investigating, and the Coroner's Office will determine cause of death.

A local pilot experienced a rough landing at Modesto Airport on Tuesday afternoon, resulting in the aircraft flipping onto its roof.

The single-engine Cessna 180 veered off the airport's runway and flipped over after touching down at about 3:30 p.m., according to the Federal Aviation Administration's preliminary information regarding the incident.

The pilot, the aircraft's only occupant, sustained only minor injuries and was evaluated by medical crews at the scene, according to the Modesto Fire Department.

The incident is being investigated by the FAA. What caused the pilot to veer off the runway is unknown, as is the extent of the pilot's minor injuries.

No identifying information on the pilot was available.

Israel-Hamas truce enters final day as extension talks drag

BY ANTONY SGUAZZIN
Bloomberg News

As the truce between Israel and Hamas entered its final 24 hours, negotiators from Qatar, Egypt and the U.S. pressed for an extension to try to secure the release of additional captives and avert a resumption of a war that erupted almost two months ago.

Just hours after Hamas turned over 12 more hostages – 10 Israelis and two Thai citizens – to the Red Cross, U.S. President Joe Biden called for an end to the fighting and stepped up criticism of Hamas, saying it feared nothing more than Israelis and Palestinians living side-by-side in peace.

had mounted an intense bombing and ground invasion campaign that's reduced much of the territory's biggest city to rubble and, according to local authorities in the Hamas-run enclave, caused the death of more than 15,000 Palestinians. The on-slaught came after Hamas fighters swarmed into southern Israel from Gaza on Oct. 7, killing about 1,200 people and taking 240 hostage. The group has been designated as a terrorist organization by the U.S. and European Union.

ed a meeting in Doha on Monday to discuss the potential terms of an extended deal, two people briefed on the visit said, adding that they had now both left. It isn't clear how much progress they had made, the people said.

Egyptian and Qatari officials were in contact to potentially extend the truce for two more days, Al-Qahera News reported Wednesday. The Cairo-based broadcaster typically represents the Egyptian government's views. Agence France-Presse cited an individual close to Hamas as saying the Islamist group was open to a four-day extension.

The pause in fighting has allowed the entry of more humanitarian aid into the stricken Mediterranean strip, where conditions are "catastrophic," according to the United Nations. Jake Sullivan, Biden's national security adviser, said the U.S. had airlifted more than 54,000 pounds of medical supplies and food to Egypt that would be delivered to Gaza in the first of three planned shipments.

So far, as part of the original agreement and a two-day extension, Hamas released around 60 Israeli hostages by Tuesday, all of them civilian women or children, and has separately freed about 20 citizens of Thailand, the Philippines and Russia. The militant group and other armed factions in Gaza are still holding soldiers and a number of civilian men, women and children, including a 10-month-old infant.

Antony Blinken, the U.S. secretary of state, and Special Presidential Envoy for Hostage Affairs Roger Carstens are due to arrive in Israel on Thursday. While there, Carstens will support Blinken's visit to the region, meet with Israeli government counterparts and visit the families of Americans held hostage in Gaza, a senior state department official said.

"To continue down the path of terror, violence, killing, and war is to give Hamas what they seek," he said on social media platform X. "We can't do that."

The fragility of the six-day cease-fire was underlined by a flare-up in northern Gaza on Tuesday, with the Israel Defense Forces saying some of its soldiers were slightly wounded in three separate explosions and an ensuing exchange of fire. A Hamas official who is a spokesman for its military wing said "a field clash" occurred after Israeli troops violated the terms of the cease-fire arrangement. He didn't elaborate.

Before the truce, Israel

Israel, which has handed over about three Palestinian prisoners for every one of its citizens who have been released, has received a list of hostages expected to be freed by Hamas on Wednesday, Axios reported on X, citing the prime minister's office.

Bank of America fined over false mortgage data

Bloomberg

Bank of America Corp. agreed to pay $12 million in fines for submitting false mortgage-lending information to the U.S. government, regulators said.

From early 2016 through late 2020, some of the bank's loan officers failed to ask mortgage applicants for their race, ethnicity and sex, as required under federal law, and then falsely recorded that the customers declined to provide the information, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau said in a statement Tuesday. The fines will go into the bureau's victim-relief fund, according to a consent order.

Bank of America is the second-largest U.S. bank by assets.

Modesto native Jeremy Renner stars in the Paramount+ crime series “Mayor of Kingstown.”

Modesto native Renner returns to shooting ‘Mayor of Kingstown’

BY PAT CLARK
pclark@modbee.com

Modesto native Jeremy Renner has returned to acting, describing himself as “nervous” to be back. The Beyer High graduate also announced that his music compilation “Love and Titanium” is being released. Both come a year after a New Year’s Day 2023 snowplow accident that left him critically injured. Renner returned earlier this month to film his leading role for season three of “Mayor of Kingstown,” a Paramount+ streaming series. “Day one on set ... nervous today,” Renner posted recently on Instagram. “Hope this works out that I can ACTUALLY pull this off for our production and more importantly the fans.” Paramount+ announced production had begun on the third season of the series, according to People.com. The show follows the McLuskys, a family that controls a struggling fictional Michigan town. Meanwhile, the Academy Award-nominated actor posted Monday on Twitter that his album “Love and Titanium” will be available Friday, Jan. 19. “A musical score to a storied year, a soundtrack of poems and anthems on lessons learned about life, death, love and recovery.... Love and Titanium is available this Friday Jan 19th.... #loveandtitanium,” the Twitter post said. Renner released a song from the album, “Wait,” on Jan. 1, the one-year anniversary of his near-fatal snowplow accident. Renner, 53, previously posted on Instagram that he’d put together music chronicling his recovery from the accident. “A collection of music we wrote about different milestones in my journey of recovery since Jan 1st this year. ‘Love and Titanium’ has been painful, deeply healing, and ultimately cathartic for me to create. I hope I get the courage to share with you all,” that October post read. Pat Clark: 209-578-2312 were working traffic and riding motorcycles. They approached Perkins around 9:45 a.m. in single file on foot with their guns drawn. Ramar was in the lead. Based on Olson’s body camera footage and other documents, Perkins’ attorneys filed this account with the court of the shooting: Ramar yelled, “Show me your hands! Show me your hands or I’m going to shoot you!” as he approached the Infiniti’s driver side. Perkins looked in Ramar’s direction, put the Infiniti into reverse and leaned forward as if reaching for something. The driver’s tinted window began to roll up and the Infiniti began to reverse. SERGEANT FIRED THREE VOLLEYS Ramar shot at Perkins twice less than a second later, with one bullet breaking the window. The Infiniti reversed for several yards before coming to a stop on a landscape island. Ramar and Olson followed the car and stood at the driver’s door with their guns pointed at Perkins. Ramar yelled, “Let me see your hands! Let me see your hands!” Perkins raised his right hand, which was empty. Ramar shot two more times. Perkins body slumped to the right. Ramar yelled for Perkins to show his his hands. Perkins turned toward the officer, and Ramar shot two more times, according to Perkin’s attorneys. Ramar continued to demand Perkins show his hands. Perkins said he could not because his left arm had been shot. The attorneys representing the city said in court records that Perkins ignored the officers’ commands, started his car and quickly reversed, and Ramar shot him after he “repeatedly failed to comply with lawful commands” A Police Department review of the shooting found Ramar’s use of deadly force was justified and within department policy. The Stanislaus County District Attorney’s Office concluded Ramar’s actions were legal. But the department review identified several of what it called training issues: Ramar did not turn his body camera on until after the shooting (Olson had his on during the shooting), Ramar did not adequately communicate to Olson his plan to take Perkins into custody and Ramar initiated contact with Perkins without enough resources. Ramar declined to be interview but issued a statement, which said in part that Modesto police dispatchers had received information that Perkins was armed and dangerous and that Perkins refused to show his hands and drove in reverse rather than surrender. The statement also said Perkins was sentenced to prison in the incident with Turlock police. “Use of force is a last resort, and an action I don’t take lightly,” Ramar said in his statement. Perkins pleaded nolo contendere in Stanislaus County Superior Court in March 2019 to the felonies of assault by means of force likely to produce great bodily injury, evading a peace officer and unauthorized use of a vehicle, all coming from the Turlock incident, according to court records. He was sentenced to four years and four months in prison. Kevin Valine: 209-578-2316, @kevinvaline

City of Santa Rosa California

Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the following constitutes a summary of an ordinance to be introduced on December 5, 2023, and scheduled for adoption on December 12, 2023, by the Santa Rosa City Council at its regular meeting to be held in the Council Chamber, 100 Santa Rosa Avenue, Santa Rosa, California.

A certified copy of the full text of the ordinance is posted and available for review in the City Clerk's Office at 100 Santa Rosa Avenue, Room 10, Santa Rosa, California. This ordinance shall be in full force and effective on the 31st day following its adoption and after publication and posting as required by law.

ORDINANCE NO. ____

ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SANTA ROSA ADDING CHAPTER 9-30 TO THE SANTA ROSA CITY CODE PERTAINING TO HAZARDOUS VEGETATION AND FUELS MANAGEMENT

The proposed ordinance is a critical part of the City of Santa Rosa's (City's) efforts to mitigate wildfire danger by reducing the vegetative fuel loads and creating defensible space on private property. Focusing on defensible space and hazardous vegetation and fuels management can create a more fire-resistant community by modifying fire behavior in an effort to reduce structural and environmental damage and aid in suppressing wildfires. Benefits from defensible space and hazardous vegetation and fuels management include: prevent loss of lives, reduce fire suppression costs, reduce private property losses and protect natural resources from devastating wildfire.

The greatest responsibility for the protection of improvements in the community rests not with the City, but with the individual property owner through the development of adequate defensible space.

The proposed ordinance requires landowners to maintain defensible space in the City's Wildland-Urban Interface Fire Area (WUIFA). It will also require the removal dead trees, hazardous vegetation and limit certain mulch under specific conditions from areas affected by wildfires and within the WUIFA. The applicable information is on file in the Fire Department, 2373 Circadian Way, Santa Rosa, CA. and is available for public inspection.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

T.S. No. 23-65573 APN: 161-430-045-000 NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED 9/11/1998. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER. A public auction sale to the highest bidder for cash, cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, check drawn by a state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, or savings association, or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state will be held by the duly appointed trustee as shown below, of all right, title, and interest conveyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described below. The sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the note(s) secured by the Deed of Trust, with interest and late charges thereon, as provided in the note(s), advances, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, interest thereon, fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee for the total amount (at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale) reasonably estimated to be set forth below. The amount may be greater on the day of sale. Trustor: BRIAN R. ST. PETER, AND JILL C. ST. PETER, HUSBAND AND WIFE AS JOINT TENANTS Duly Appointed Trustee: ZBS Law, LLP Deed recorded 9/22/1998, as Instrument No. 1998 0109615, of Official Records in the office of the Recorder of Sonoma County, California, Date of Sale: 12/15/2023 at 10:00 AM Place of Sale: In the Plaza at Fremont Park located at 860 Fifth Street, Santa Rosa, CA Estimated amount of unpaid balance and other charges: $147,191.51 Note: Because the Beneficiary reserves the right to bid less than the total debt owed, it is possible that at the time of the sale the opening bid may be less than the total debt owed. Street Address or other common designation of real property: 976 VENTANA DRIVE WINDSOR, CALIFORNIA 95492 Described as follows: As more fully described on said Deed of Trust. A.P.N #.: 161-430-045-000 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address or other common designation, if any, shown above. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924a of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866) 266-7512 or visit this Internet Web site www.elitepostandpub.com, using the file number assigned to this case 23-65573. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (866) 266-7512, or visit this internet website www.elitepostandpub.com, using the file number assigned to this case 23-65573 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. Study: ‘Forever chemicals’ in thousands of private wells near military sites

By KFF Health News

Water tests show nearly 3,000 private wells located near 63 active and former U.S. military bases are contaminated with “forever chemicals” at levels higher than what federal regulators consider safe for drinking.

According to the Environmental Working Group, a Washington, D.C.-based nonprofit that analyzed Department of Defense testing data, 2,805 wells spread across 29 states were contaminated with at least one of two types of per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances, or PFAS, above 4 parts per trillion, a limit proposed earlier this year by the Environmental Protection Agency. That new drinking water standard is expected to take effect by the end of the year.

But contamination in those wells was lower than the 70 parts per trillion threshold the Pentagon uses to trigger remediation.

EWG researchers said they did not know how many people rely on the wells for drinking, cooking, and bathing, but the 76 tested locations represent just a fraction of the private wells near 714 current or former military sites spread across the U.S. According to EWG, Texas had nearly a third of the contaminated wells, with 909. Researchers recorded clusters of tainted wells in both urban and rural areas, from Riverside County and Sacramento in California to Rapid City, South Dakota, and Helena, Montana.

“They are going to have to test more bases,” said Jared Hayes, a senior policy analyst with EWG, in an interview with KFF Health News. “Those 2,805 are going to be a small number when they start testing drinking water wells near every single base.”

Defense Department officials are investigating hundreds of current and former domestic U.S. military installations and communities that surround them to determine whether their soil, groundwater, or drinking water is contaminated with PFAS chemicals.

The Defense Department is a major contributor of PFAS pollution nationwide — the result of spills, dumping, or use of industrial solvents, firefighting foam, and other substances that contain what have been dubbed forever chemicals because they do not break down in the environment and can accumulate in the human body.

Exposure to PFAS has been associated with health problems such as decreased response to vaccines, some types of cancer, low birth weight, and high blood pressure during pregnancy, according to a report published last year by the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine.

A study published this year linked testicular cancer in military personnel to exposure to PFOS, the main type of PFAS chemical used in firefighting foam.

In July, a U.S. Geological Survey study estimated that at least 45% of U.S. tap water contains at least one type of PFAS chemical.

USGS researchers tested 716 locations nationwide and found the forever chemicals more frequently in samples that were collected near urban areas and potential sources of PFAS like military installations, airports, industrial sites, and wastewater treatment plants, according to Kelly Smalling, a USGS research chemist and lead author of the study.

“We knew we would find PFAS in tap water,” she told KFF Health News in July. “But what was really interesting was the similarities between the private wells and the public supply.”

Drinking water sources near military installations that test above 70 parts per trillion draw immediate action from the Defense Department. Those responses include providing alternate drinking water sources, treatment, or water filtration systems.

Below that threshold, federal officials leave it up to homeowners to weigh and mitigate the health risks of contamination, Hayes said.

“It’s unclear what, if anything, these private individuals are being advised,” Hayes said. “If DoD is saying that 70 parts per trillion is the level they are going to provide clean water ... the understanding would be if it’s below that, it must be fine.”

The Pentagon bases its 70 parts per trillion standard for PFOS and PFOA chemicals on a 2016 health advisory issued by the EPA. Officials have said they’re waiting for the new federal standard to go into effect before changing Defense Department parameters.

The Department of Defense did not respond by publication deadline to questions about EWG’s findings, or how it will address the new EPA limits.

While EWG’s examination found that thousands of wells contained PFAS at levels above the new EPA standard, but below the military’s 70 ppt threshold for action, it also learned that the Defense Department had found 1,800 private wells that registered higher than 70 ppt and had provided mitigation services to the owners of those wells.

Hayes said the combined levels of PFOS and PFOA in some wells were as high as 10,000 ppt.

Hayes said it’s unclear how long people near those military sites have been drinking contaminated water. “Chances are it’s been years, decades,” he said.

Federal law requires public water systems to be monitored regularly for pollutants, but private wells have no similar requirements. Hayes recommended that people who live near any current or former military installations and use a well for their drinking water have their water tested and use a filter designed specifically to remove PFAS.

According to the Defense Department’s PFAS remediation website, as part of its ongoing investigation and remediation effort, it has closed contaminated wells, installed new water sources, and treated drinking water on military bases. According to the Pentagon, it is working “to ensure no one on-base is exposed to PFOS or PFOA in drinking water above 70ppt.”

“Addressing DoD’s PFAS releases is at the core of the Department’s commitment to protect the health and safety of its Service members, their families, the DoD civilian workforce, and the communities in which DoD serves,” Pentagon officials said on the site.

HUMBOLDT COUNTY

Supervisors nix competing pot measure

By Jackson Guilfoil
jguilfoil@times-standard.com

The Humboldt County Board of Supervisors unanimously voted to abandon pursuing a cannabis regulation ordinance put to voters by March.

The measure would have competed with Measure A, the controversial cannabis ordinance whose creators — Kneeland residents Mark Thurmond and Elizabeth Watson — say will protect watersheds and neighborhoods from dealing with negative effects stemming from large-scale cannabis cultivation, though detractors argue it will destroy what remains of Humboldt County’s legal cultivators.

“This was sort of an 11th-hour attempt to put something together that could be an alternative that addresses many folks’ concerns, but I also wanted to acknowledge that up until a month and a half ago, my expectation, and I believe, most of our board’s expectation, was that we were going to see how it went in March and then adjust accordingly,” 4th District Supervisor Natalie Arroyo said.

The county currently caps total cannabis permits at 3,500 and 1,205 acres spread across 12 watersheds. The alternative would have reduced that to 1,400 permits and 480 acres.

The alternative was created as an attempt to compete with Measure A, which would cap the permits at 1.05 times the permitted number as of March 4, 2022. Measure A creates a number of new restrictions, namely banning new or expanded permits for mixed light and indoor grows and grows over 10,000 square feet.

Opponents of the initiative — which include several local cultivators and the Humboldt County Growers Alliance trade group — also argue that the measure, by defining any light deprivation technique as mixed-light usage, would double the tax rate for most local growers.

While the growers’ alliance had previously endorsed the supervisors’ effort to create a competing ballot measure, the organization’s leadership said they were no longer supportive during public comment.

“(Measure A) is a gun pointed to everyone’s hand, and we should not be forced to make decisions under duress,” Natalynne DeLapp, the executive director of the growers alliance, said. “If you want to give voters a choice, keep it simple, simple, simple. Size only. When we start getting into these watershed caps. There are a lot of problems with it.”

Second District Supervisor Michelle Bushnell agreed with Arroyo. She said she disliked how rushed the county was to create an alternative, and at the risk of unintentional consequences, would vote to halt efforts to create the competing ordinance before the March 5 election.

One step at a time

Happy New Year! January is a time for new beginnings. It's a time when we often set our goals for the remainder of the year. It can be a time to commit to change, whether it is within our personal lives or our careers. It can often help to begin with the end in mind. If you can create an image of the end goal, it can be easier to build the steps to complete the change you crave.

But, so often, it can be hard to see the end goal in the beginning. This is especially true when you are in the middle of a difficult situation. And let's face it, the last few years have not been easy.

One thing remains true, however. If you make small steps in the right direction, you will eventually find your way. In other words, good choices will lead you to more good options. And eventually, your destination will reveal itself. If you've taken many positive steps, you are certain to find yourself in a positive place — even if there are a few turns along the way.

If you do have a clear vision for the future, set an intention. Break it down into bite-sized steps that you can do over the course of the year. Create a timeline. Find friends to help hold you accountable along the way. Reach out for help as you need it.

But, not having that vision of the end doesn't mean you won't find yourself in a great spot. I've often spoken to job seekers who are distressed. They have two good job offers and aren't sure which to choose. In reality, both opportunities are good options. This is often the case in life. There are many paths that will take you to a good outcome.

However, what you do need to do is to get moving. Staying stagnant in a situation that isn't working for you will not lead you to where you need to be. It will only make it harder to get yourself out later.

No matter what your goals are for 2024, January is a great time to polish up your professional presence. Ensure that your LinkedIn profile is up to date. And, set aside some time to update your resume. This is likely the time of the year when you will complete your performance evaluation for the previous year. Use the opportunity to truly outline the impact of your contribution to your company. In addition to making a great case for your bonus or raise, you can use this information for your resume.

Finding a job is hard work, especially when you are proactively looking. Start early, and keep moving. The more effort you put into your search, the more options you will ultimately have. And, you will have more opportunities to guide your career in a positive direction. Start by taking one positive step at a time.

one that has a documented history of its players getting debilitating brain disease from repeated blows to the head. Several high-profile examples of former players — most notably the suicide of legendary NFL linebacker Junior Seau who suffered from a degenerative brain disease — have prompted the NFL down to youth leagues to try to make tackling safer.

Researchers say tackle football is still dangerous despite the changes to the game. For instance, Boston University published research last year finding that players who've spent more than 11 years in the sport have an increased likelihood of brain trauma, leading to poor impulse control and thinking problems.

But there's no guarantee Sacramento Democratic Assemblymember Kevin McCarty's bill will advance beyond the Assembly, even in a Legislature that's not shy about citing medical research to make decisions that outrage parental-rights groups and become "nanny state" fodder for national conservative media.

Gov. Gavin Newsom's office said Wednesday that he would veto any bill with an outright ban on youth tackle football. "My Administration will work with the Legislature and the bill's author to strengthen safety in youth football — while ensuring parents have the freedom to decide which sports are most appropriate for their children," he said in a statement.

Assembly Bill 734 would phase in a ban, first prohibiting children under 6 from playing tackle football starting in 2025, and working up to bar those younger than 12 by 2029. It must pass on the Assembly floor by the end of the month if it's going to eventually make its way through the state Senate to Gov. Gavin Newsom's desk. Newsom hasn't indicated whether he'd sign the bill.

A handful of other state legislatures have debated similar youth tackle football bans. None have passed. A similar version of the bill in 2018 failed in California to even get out of committee.

Along the way, lawmakers are sure to see a repeat of last week's hearing. Dozens of coaches, youth sports association officials, jersey-clad pre-teen football players and their parents spilled out of the hearing room into the hallway as they lined up to take the microphone and urge the committee to kill the measure.

The groups, including the California coalition of Save Youth Football, whose private Facebook group has nearly 7,000 members, have promised to keep up the pressure.

Already, the issue has taken on a partisan tone. A representative for Moms for Liberty, an influential group among conservatives known for seeking to ban textbooks that reference gender identity and academic discussions about systemic racism, was among those who testified in opposition last week.

"Huddle up California. Protect your parental rights. Stand up to Big Government," the California Youth Football Alliance wrote on its Facebook page earlier this month, urging followers to contact McCarty's office.

Youth tackle football fans cite race, community ties

But youth tackle football is different from other parental-rights debates that are more easily framed as a Republican-Democrat dichotomy.

As they weigh the bill, liberal lawmakers will consider arguments from the likes of Sacramento County Sheriff Jim Cooper, who opposes it.

Cooper, a Black former Democratic Assemblymember from Elk Grove, worries that banning youth tackle football would take away an outlet for young children in Black communities who might otherwise find their way into a gang.

"Notably, Black male children engage in youth tackle football at higher rates than any other race," Cooper told the committee last week in his sheriff's uniform. "To my knowledge, there's been no pressure to limit participation in lacrosse, soccer or ice hockey, which all have concussion rates similar to youth tackle football but are prevalent in more affluent and exclusive communities."

Lawmakers, he said, have already passed legislation he authored in 2019 that limited full-contact youth football practices to no more than 30 minutes per day, two days a week. That bill had support from the California Youth Football Alliance.

Lawmakers also will have to weigh their own experiences with the sport. Assemblymember Tom Lackey, one of the Republicans on the sports and tourism committee, told his colleagues last week that he's "participated in flag football and ... participated in tackle football. They're different."

"If we ban this sport, we take away the opportunity and many opportunities from children to grow — not only as an athlete — but as a self-actualized adult who knows when they have the capabilities to overcome an obstacle and achieve success further," said Lackey, a former California Highway Patrol sergeant from Palmdale. "We take away a lifelong passion for the love of the game."

Experts warn of dangers from tackling

McCarty, the bill's author and a former Pop Warner youth football player himself, said wanting to restrict young kids from tackling each other won't negate their love for football, a sport that he said has been part of his family for as long as he can remember.

"You can love football and love our kids and try to protect our kids at the same time," he told the committee, after pulling out a ball with a 49ers logo.

The experts McCarty brought in to testify in support of his bill included pediatric neurologist Dr. Stella Legarda, president of the California Neurology Society, which sponsored the bill. The group spent $17,983 on lobbying last year on this bill and others, according to the latest reports filed with the California Secretary of State.

She pointed out that the NFL has been having its own players shed their pads and helmets to play flag football in its signature exhibition game, the Pro Bowl.

"When the NFL takes measures to protect its players by playing flag football in the Pro Bowl, it is not just safeguarding its multimillion investments," Legarda told the committee. "It delivers the clear message that impact injuries and cumulative head trauma are perilous and should be minimized."

Assemblymember Valencia, the former football player, told CalMatters in an interview that the bill and the concerns about the health of California's youth football players were very much on his mind last year, as he stood on the sidelines of his alma mater, San Jose State, during its game with its rival, Cal State Fresno.

He said he was struck by "how violent and damaging" the sport he played is. He couldn't imagine taking those sorts of hits at the speeds the players were moving, now, as a 35-year-old man.

Valencia said that young kids can play flag football and still learn the skills they'll need to play tackle football when they're older — without risking brain damage.

"Drills, becoming more athletic, agility, speed, that makes you a better football player," he said. "But tackling? That comes second hand. You can figure that out in a very short period of time."

Diversity

environmental science major at Mission College in Santa Clara. "I've had a few professors who are Asian American men, but navigating higher education as a woman of color has been difficult. I have yet to take a class with a female Asian American professor, and it feels like my identity has been left out."

Chang spoke at an event Tuesday evening hosted by the campaign about the report.

Autumn Alaniz-Wiggins, a student at Chico State University, said she was excited to study nutrition, access and food justice at the school. But when she started her classes, she found that instead of learning about the intersection of systemic racism and food swamps, her instructors focused on the benefits of kale and quinoa.

"It became clear to me that the absence of diverse identities in faculty and leadership positions hindered us from equitable student access," she said. And for a year, Alaniz-Wiggins dropped out of college. That is, until she met her first Black faculty member at Chico State.

"He taught culturally relevant courses and even hired me as a research assistant where I became published through a study on nutritional knowledge and (low-income) students," she said. "For the first time, I was getting the support that I needed from the start."

For the Campaign for College Opportunity, improvement is too slow.

"California's public colleges and universities as well as our governor and Legislature have prioritized and invested in efforts to increase the representation of faculty and college leaders, but the work is, at best, happening at a pace that is far too slow or at worst, only paying lip service to the values of diversity, equity and inclusion," said Michele Siqueiros, president of the Campaign for College Opportunity. Despite small increases in the racial and ethnic diversity of faculty and college leadership, "troubling gaps" remain, she added.

The report found that while there have been improvements in gender and racial representations since the campaign's first report in 2018, the state's public universities still need to improve diversifying their leadership positions. For example, Latino, Black, Asian, Native Hawaiian and American Indian professors are underrepresented among the tenured and tenure-track faculty groups across the community colleges, UC and CSU systems.

The UC system

There are few Latino faculty members in the UC system, and only 8% of them are tenured or on the tenure track. Among Black faculty, only 3% are tenured or on the tenure track.

Only eight of 117 campus leaders in the UC system are Latino, compared with 25% of UC students who identify as Latino, 39% of all Californians and 49% of Californians aged 18 to 24.

When it comes to women in leadership, only two of the nine undergraduate campuses are led by women, despite 54% of undergraduate UC students identifying as women.

The Cal State system

Only 10% of Latino faculty across the 23 CSU campuses are tenured or on the tenure track.

The report also found that the CSU's academic senate is also overwhelmingly white. Seventy percent of the Academic Senate and 64% of the campus-wide academic senate members are white, despite white students comprising 21% of the undergraduate student body.

California's community colleges

Only 18% of Latino faculty across the state's 116 community colleges are tenured or on the tenure track. Among Black faculty, only 4% are tenured or on the tenure track.

Asian and Native Hawaiian-Pacific Islander students comprise 14% of the state's community college students, but only 8% of campus or district leaders are Asian or Native Hawaiian.

California Community Colleges Chancellor Sonya Christian said she's optimistic that in five years students will see an increase in diverse leadership across the 116 campuses.

"Tenure happens at the discipline level, not only at the college level," she said. "As system leaders, we need to set the expectations and shift the mindset."

Unfortunately, too often during the hiring process, people give arguments about not diminishing standards in the pursuit of diversity and equity, but "those are all false arguments," Christian said. "We need to focus on what the data shows like the (report)."

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 855 238-5118 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-23-966103-AB. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. SE SACRIFICA UNA REFORMA MIGRATORIA

Un pequeño grupo bipartidista de senadores está elaborando una serie de reformas a la ley migratoria fuera del marco tradicional que establece combinar nuevas restricciones y límites para los inmigrantes que quieren vivir en Estados Unidos con medidas que contribuyan a la incorporación legal de quienes llevan mucho tiempo viviendo y trabajando en nuestro país.

En concreto, se está negociando en la Cámara Alta una serie de cambios dirigidos a endurecer los estándares para solicitar asilo con el fin de aumentar la cantidad de rechazados y de deportaciones. La definición de una “amenaza creíble” será más difícil de demostrar.

También se quiere incrementar la cantidad de “países terceros” ante los cuales los migrantes deberán solicitar residencia si los cruzan antes de llegar a nuestra frontera. Y se busca limitar la autoridad presidencial para admitir a extranjeros por razones humanitarias u otras.

Las medidas son parte de una combinación creada por la Casa Blanca para convencer a los republicanos de que respalden la ayuda multimillonaria a Ucrania en su defensa contra los invasores rusos con una inquietud atractiva para ellos como es dificultar el proceso de inmigración.

Una significativa cantidad de congresistas republicanos prefieren que los miles de millones de dólares que van a Ucrania se queden en Estados Unidos, ya sea para reducir el déficit o reforzar la frontera. Varios de ellos simpatizan con el nacionalismo del líder ruso Vladimir Putin en contraste con el globalizado presidente Joe Biden.

La jugada de la Casa Blanca para lograr un resultado legislativo expedito favorable para el financiamiento a Ucrania rompe el molde tradicional de negociar cambios migratorios. El tema es tan controversial que se suelen combinar medidas duras que satisfacen a los republicanos con otras que benefician a los inmigrantes. Este no es el caso.

Creemos, junto a 11 senadores demócratas, que no se debe romper esta dinámica por más urgente que sea el conflicto en Ucrania. Por lo menos se debería poder actuar en la regularización de los menores de edad traídos de niños a nuestro país por sus padres indocumentados.

La gran mayoría de los estadounidenses, votantes y hasta republicanos están de acuerdo en dar los papeles a quienes estudiaron, estudian y trabajan honestamente sin ser haber sido responsables de cruzar ilegalmente.

Desde hace tiempo que los sondeos de opinión muestran que, a excepción de una minoría recalcitrante, hay un consenso general al respecto de permitir el funcionamiento pleno en la sociedad de los beneficiarios del programa de Acción Diferida para los Llegados en la Infancia (DACA), quienes tienen mucho que aportar.

Este es el momento para solucionar el limbo legal en el que se hallan injustamente más de 900,000 personas. Existe un consenso político en la calle para beneficiar a los “soñadores”, pero es triste que la urgencia por apoyar a Ucrania y frenar la invasión rusa que tienen los demócratas y el extremismo republicano antiinmigrante rompan la dinámica necesaria para aprobar medidas migratorias razonables que, además, cuentan con amplio apoyo ciudadano.

Son miles los hospitalizados y muertos a causa del covid a nivel global

EFE

El mundo “continúa en pandemia de covid-19, mientras el virus sigue evolucionando”, advirtió la jefa técnica de la Organización Mundial de la Salud contra esta enfermedad, María van Kerkhove, quien recordó que cientos de miles de personas continúan siendo hospitalizadas por este motivo.

En una rueda de prensa organizada ante el aumento de los casos de covid, gripe y otras enfermedades respiratorias a nivel global, Van Kerkhove aclaró que aunque la situación es mucho menos grave que la de 2021 o 2022, el riesgo sanitario que el coronavirus implica sigue siendo alto, dado que el patógeno circula por todos los países.

“El número de muertes se ha reducido drásticamente desde el pico alcanzado hace un par de años, pero todavía tenemos alrededor de 10,000 decesos mensuales, y eso sólo es con datos de medio centenar de países”, alertó.

La mitad de las muertes reportadas el mes pasado, por ejemplo, provienen únicamente de Estados Unidos, por lo que se teme que numerosos casos no están siendo debidamente reportados.

Según la experta estadounidense, los análisis de aguas residuales en diferentes partes del planeta apuntan a que la circulación real del coronavirus puede ser entre dos y 19 veces mayor de lo que está siendo reportado.

La situación se complica por el hecho de que las enfermedades respiratorias transmisibles aumentaron en el reciente periodo vacacional, en el que ha habido un crecimiento de los casos no sólo de covid sino también de gripe, virus VSR y otros patógenos estacionales.

La OMS alertó esta semana de un aumento del 42% en

Alrededor de 10 mil decesos mensuales se registran en la actualidad. SHUTTERSTOCK

La OMS advierte que la pandemia de covid-19 no ha terminado las hospitalizaciones y de un 62% en los ingresos en UCI por covid, unas cifras que una vez más son incompletas, ya que la organización sólo recibe información de apenas una veintena de países, de un total de más de 200 territorios.

“No estamos en una crisis, no tenemos los niveles de impacto del pico de la pandemia en 2021, 2022 o incluso 2023, pero la covid es todavía una amenaza a la salud global y está causando demasiados problemas que podríamos evitar”, resumió la jefa técnica de la unidad anticovid de la OMS.

Van Kerkhove recordó también el problema que genera el llamado “covid largo”, síntomas multiorgánicos que sufren alrededor de un 6% de los enfermos tras su alta y que pueden prolongarse durante meses o años.

“Nos preocupa que en cinco, 10, 20 años podamos ver efectos en forma de problemas cardíacos, pulmonares o neurológicos”, admitió la experta norteamericana.

Van Kerkhove reconoció que después de cuatro años “hay cierta complacencia, en un momento en el que la mayoría de la gente no quiere hablar de la covid, quizá en parte por el trauma que mucha gente ha tenido”.

La enfermedad “ha causado graves impactos en la salud mental, tanto para los que la han sufrido directamente como aquellos que perdieron seres queridos”, subrayó.

Van Kerkhove recordó las recomendaciones de la OMS en lo referente a vacunaciones (se aconsejan dosis de refuerzo cada seis o doce meses para personas mayores, trabajadores sanitarios y otros grupos vulnerables) como en el uso de mascarillas en determinados casos.

“Recomendamos que todo el mundo utilice mascarilla en las instalaciones sanitarias”, insistió la experta, quien también aconsejó el uso de esta protección en personas enfermas con el fin de reducir el contagio de enfermedades respiratorias.

Las mascarillas vuelven a los hospitales

EFE

Hospitales en al menos cinco de los 50 estados de EEUU han vuelto a exigir el uso de mascarillas debido al aumento de contagios de covid-19, gripe y otras enfermedades respiratorias.

California, Illinois, Maryland, Nueva York y Massachusetts son algunos de los estados donde los centros de atención médica han hecho obligatorio el uso de mascarillas tanto para los pacientes como para el personal sanitario.

En cualquier caso, el aumento de contagios es difícil de medir en Estados Unidos porque muchos estados han dejado de recolectar datos y el único organismo federal que sigue publicando cifras sobre el impacto del virus son los Centros para el Control y la Prevención de Enfermedades.

Unas 1,500 muertes a la semana

En concreto, según los CDC, en la semana del 9 de diciembre de 2023, la última con datos completos, se registraron 1,614 muertes por covid-19. De media, en las últimas semanas con datos completos, hubo unas 1,488 muertes semanales. Aunque esas cifras de fallecidos por covid-19 siguen siendo elevadas, son inferiores al récord de 25,974 muertes registrado en la semana que terminó el 9 de enero de 2021. Por otro lado, la gripe fue la causa principal de 163 muertes en la semana que terminó el 9 de diciembre de 2023, según los CDC.

Comercio entre México y Estados Unidos

Eso ofrece la Cámara de Comercio México-Estados Unidos.

POR AGUSTÍN E. PRADILLO

ESPECIAL PARA LA PRENSA SONOMA

Si su deseo y proyecto de vida es iniciar una empresa dedicada a la importación o exportación, o ya tiene una y le gustaría expandirse hacia nuevos horizontes, es fundamental saber que no está sólo en esta tarea.

Existe toda una infraestructura y organización dispuesta a ayudarlo con el fin de hacer realidad sus ilusiones y, porque no transformarse en un éxito empresario internacional; para ello cuenta con el apoyo y experticia de la Cámara de Comercio México-Estados Unidos, Capítulo California.

“Es la única cámara binacional que existe en Estados Unidos. Nuestro objetivo principal es, por un lado, fortalecer y apoyar la relación económica, política y de negocios entre Estados Unidos y México. Por otro, es dar todo el sustento a empresas y empresarios que desean abrir o expandir sus operaciones entre ambos países o quizá más allá de esas fronteras”, señala con pleno convencimiento la Directora Ejecutiva de la Cámara de Comercio, México-Estados Unidos, en su capítulo de California, Marlen Marroquín.

“Nuestra Cámara fue fundada en 1973, es decir hace 50 años, así como nuestra representación en Washington tiene 50 años y la de Nueva York tiene 100 años de existen-

Durante todo ese tiempo, asegura quien se graduó en Administración de Negocios de la prestigiosa universidad mexicana Anáhuac, “Hemos dado asesoría y apoyo a cientos de miles de empresarios y gobiernos tanto estatales como nacionales de ambos países, en materia de comercio internacional y sin duda hemos puesto un importante grano de arena para construir esta sólida relación comercial”.

México se convirtió en el socio comercial más importante de los Estados Unidos, superando, incluso a China y Canadá, países que en las últimas décadas han tenido los lazos comerciales más fuertes con la principal economía del mundo. Este hecho resulta relevante no solo porque es la primera vez que sucede en la historia de las relaciones mercantiles con Estados Unidos, sino porque además, se trata de una cifra récord que se logra luego del colapso que significó la pandemia del coronavirus y el desarrollo industrial y comercial de México.

Es por ello que Marroquín -quien tiene 20 años como directora Ejecutiva de la Cámara- invita a empresarios, productores, artesanos y personas deseadas de participar en este rico mercado quienes se encuentran en el norte de California, particularmente en el área de Sonoma, Napa, Santa Rosa, a unirse para explorar de manera conjunta las enormes oportunidades que hoy ofrece el exponencial crecimiento comercial entre ambos países en todos los órdenes.

“En nuestra organización”, dice Marroquín quien llevó a cabo un curso de especialización de Liderazgo Ejecutivo Global en la Universidad del Sur de California, “encontrarán una serie de herramientas muy valiosas como son la extensa red de oficinas con que cuenta la Cámara en ambos países, análisis y evaluación de mercados.

Contribuimos a localizar los proveedores que requieran para la adquisición de sus productos o bien para la venta de los mismos; investigación a fondo de la credibilidad y confianza de las empresas con las que se pueda participar; capacitación especializada para conocer a fondo regulaciones legales y administrativas del comercio internacional”.

Asimismo, resalta la Directora Ejecutiva, quien fuera seleccionada como una de las “Mujeres Latinas Exitosas” de la Revista Baja Traveler 2011, “se organizan seminarios, conferencias, cursos vinculados con el comercio internacional y otras ramas afines, que les permiten a los miembros actualizarse, pero sobre todo, vincularse con otros socios con quienes es factible ampliar las oportunidades de hacer negocios; amén de estar en nuestra lista de miembros de nuestra página de internet, redes sociales y recibir mensualmente nuestra “news letter”.

Para evaluar lo que significa el comercio entre México y Estados Unidos, países que cuentan con uno de los más avanzados acuerdos de libre comercio, de acuerdo con datos de la Oficina del Censo estadounidense, el total de exportaciones e importaciones de bienes entre ambos países alcanzó los 462 mil 107 millones de dólares; las exportaciones de bienes de los Estados Unidos hacia México sumaron, en los primeros siete meses del año, 151 mil 396 millones de dólares; mientras que las importaciones, en el mismo periodo, pasaron de 197 mil 193 millones a 209 mil 710 millones, una cifra histórica que representa un crecimiento de 13.5 mil millones de dólares y California es una de las entidades con las que México mantiene los más altos índices de comercio.

Pero lo más sobresaliente, resalta Marroquín, es que la Cámara no se ha quedado en el entorno a solicitar subvenciones. También han estado trabajando con funcionarios de Healdsburg para fijar un lugar para el primer tianguis, una forma de mercado callejero, que está previsto para abril. Y todavía están investigando para concretar su mercado y meta exacta.

“No queremos crear programación centrada en nuestras propias ideas. Tienen que venir de la comunidad. Si son más mujeres las que necesitan ese apoyo, entonces nos enfocamos en programación para mujeres”, dijo Pérez. “Si se trata de la comunidad LGBTQ, tiene que pertenecer más a ese grupo específico. Queremos saber quiénes son estas personas que tienen el sueño de crear su propio negocio para que podamos centrarnos en ese grupo específico de nuestra comunidad”.

Una oleada de apoyo

Una meta, dijo Cervantes, es usar los eventos del mercado como una “incubadora para que puedan empezar a crecer, y algún día poder salir y tener su propio negocio fuera” del tianguis.

Según el informe sobre el estado del emprendimiento latino 2022 de Stanford Business School, las empresas de propiedad latina son el segmento de más rápido crecimiento de la población empresarial estadounidense. Y a medida que Pérez, Cervantes y Arreguín-Vásquez avanzan, son parte de una oleada de apoyo regional a los empresarios latinos.

En el Valle de Sonoma, La Luz, un proveedor de servicios centrado en los latinos que desde 2014 ofrece microcréditos a empresarios aspirantes, dio inicio el año pasado a un nuevo programa para apoyar a las personas con pequeñas empresas. La Luz también es parte de una colaboración de 17 miembros en todo el condado, que también incluye al prestamista enfocado en los latinos Creser Capital, el Centro de Desarrollo de Pequeñas Empresas

Federal y la Cámara Metro de Santa Rosa, denominada Small Business Equity and Recovery, que está llevando a cabo talleres y otorgando subvenciones entre otras actividades de apoyo a los negociantes locales.

“Definitivamente hay mucho trabajo en marcha porque hay muchos empresarios en el condado de Sonoma”, dijo Angie Sánchez, directora ejecutiva de la Cámara de Comercio Hispana y fundadora de VIDA Cultural Arts, que produce Sueños, un mercado de temática latina que presenta vendedores de objetos de colección, ropa, joyas y otros productos en Santa Rosa y el Valle de Sonoma.

Sobre VAMOS, Sánchez dijo: “Que aprovechen la parte norte del condado de Sonoma, Healdsburg y, potencialmente, si inten-tan hacer Cloverdale y Geyserville, eso es genial porque entonces, como todas las ciudades principales del condado, tendrán la oportunidad de tener algo como eso”.

En La Luz, el director ejecutivo Leonardo Lobato instó a los fundadores de VAMOS a saborear el “proceso” de lanzamiento y acercarse a otros en el mismo campo.

“Haz conexiones.

Aprovechar esa experiencia de otras organizaciones y otras iniciativas”, dijo. “Este es un proyecto hermoso, hermoso. Habrá retos, pero sigamos avanzando. Si lo hace, podría tener un gran impacto en la comunidad en su conjunto”.
